

Tutors

Spirit Studios is an independent Higher Education provider specialising in Music Production, Electronic Music and Sound Engineering.

We are always looking to expand our pool of enthusiastic talent for the subject of music, and are looking for interest from music producers to get in touch for an informal discussion.

We are looking for enthusiastic, qualified, creative music producers to lead, promote and deliver some of our academic, private, short to medium courses.

Duties & Responsibilities:

- Actively grow and promote a music production community internally and externally and develop innovative ways to promote them and Spirit Studios at internal or external events as required
- Actively grow and bring to the table a music production community of external partners
- Work closely with the VP of Curriculum to develop innovative approaches to delivery
- Participate in staff or professional development activities

Essential requirements:

- Availability to work evenings
- Ability, creativity and experience as a music producer
- Strong understanding of a broad range of production software and techniques
- Strong understanding of a broad range of production hardware and techniques

Desirable requirements:

- A degree or further study in a music based subject area
- Strong understanding of IT
- Music Industry experience
- Teaching experience

Equal opportunities:

Spirit Studios is committed to equality and diversity, and welcomes applications from all sectors of the community.

If you think you're a good fit for the role, please send an email with covering letter as attachments explaining how to louise.gooddy@spiritstudios.ac.uk